The table starts yesterday morning at six o'clock and ends this morning. It divides your day into half-hour parts. Draw a line in each cell that stands for the time and the activity you did at that time. This could be one or more activities, so there will be one or more lines in each column. If you did an activity for more than 30 minutes, draw a line across the cells that apply. If there were 30 minutes during which you did several activities one after another, mark them all, even if any of them took less than 30 minutes.*
