Elections to the Parliament of the Czech Republic in 1996:

The elections in 1996 were the first regular parliamentary elections in the newly established Czech Republic. After the split of the Czechoslovak Federation into the Czech Republic and the Slovak Republic in 1993 the Czech National Council became the lower house of the Parliament of the Czech Republic - the Chamber of Deputies. The main legislative body of the former Czech and Slovak Federative Republic (CSFR) was a bi-cameral Federal Assembly. The Czech National Council was a second rank national parliament of one of two members in the federation. Last elections in the CSFR was held in July 1992 into federal and both of national parliaments.

There were two elections in the Czech Republic in 1996. The new electoral system to the Parliament of the Czech Republic was adopted in 1995. On the base of its amendments was held elections to the Chamber of Deputies (the lower house of the Parliament) as well as new elections to the Senate (the upper house).

The members of the Senate (81) are elected by direct franchise according to the principles of the majority system. The term is six years. One third of the Senators shall be elected every two years. The first elections (two rounds) were held in November in 1996.
Exit poll 1996 data are concerned only to the elections for the Chamber of Deputies.

The elections for the Chamber of Deputies were held from Friday, 31 May to Saturday, 1 June. The electoral system is based on the principle of proportional representation. The chamber has 200 Deputies who shall be elected for a term of four years. Political subjects taking part in the elections are to submit their lists of candidates for multi-mandate electoral regions. Voters voted first for a party or coalition, than they could prefer individual deputies from the list using so-called priority vote (4 priority votes are the maximum). After the election only the parties with a minimum of 5 per cent of votes are admitted into the first scrutiny. To be admitted coalition of two parties has to win no less than 7 per cent of votes, coalition of three parties 9 and coalition of four and more parties 11 per cent of votes. Political subjects with 2 and more per cent were entitled to receive a state financial support for their activities.

Results of the Elections in %:

| Political Subject | Results |
