Investigators

The Czech ISSP 1998 survey was organized by the Research team on social stratification of the Institute of Sociology, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic, Prague. The project has been led by Klara Plecitá (Vlachová). The fieldwork was carried out by the SC&C spol. s r.o, Prague.

The Czech participation in the ISSP 1998, 2000, and 2001 has been sponsored by the Grant Agency of the Czech Republic (grant No. 403/99/1129).

Fieldwork dates: 18-th June 1999 - 27-th July 1999

Context of the ISSP module

Stand-alone study. Country specific questions were attached at the end of the module.

Language: Czech

Sampling

General population: Adults of 18 and older who permanently lives in the Czech Republic.

Sampling procedure: Three-stage random stratified sample. Stratification factor were regions, the basic sample unit was household.

Stages:
1. Random sample of 150 election districts.
2. Preparation of the list of all households in each district. Random selection of households in each district.
3. Random selection of respondent (Kish grid).

Sample size: 1 223

Responce Rate: 39.2%

total addresses issued	3 120
full productive interview	1 223

non-responce:

ineligible addresses	33	(empty, demolished, etc.)
no contact at address	155
no contact with sel. person	27
refusals	1 674
other	8	(incompled, illness of respondent, etc.)

Fieldwork Method: Face-to-face interview.

Systematic properties of the sample:

1. In selected households the propability of selection of respondent was 1 / number of adult household members. The bias resulting from the sampling design is corrected using the design weight.

2. Due to a low responce rate respondents with lower education and men are significantly underrepresented. This problem is also corrected by weighting.

Weighting:

Total weight is constructed from:

1. design weights based on proportion of household sizes, and

2. post-stratification weights based on sex (male-female), education (primary-vocational-secondary-university), and distribution of age (18-29, 30-44, 45-59, 60+).

The weights were prepared on the base of Microcensus 1996. Microcensus surveys are income surveys based on 1-2 percent sample of households which are regularly repeated every 3-5 years since 1958. The Microcensus 1996 was conducted by the Czech Statistical Office on a 1 percent random sample of households in March 1997.

WEIGHT "Weighting factor".
Total weight for the Czech data is constructed from:
1. design weights based on proportion of household sizes, and
2. post-stratification weights based on sex (male-female), education (primary-vocational-secondary-university), and distribution of age (18-29, 30-44, 45-59, 60+).
The weights were prepared on the base of Microcensus 1996. Microcensus surveys are income surveys which are regularly repeated since 1958 every 3-5 years on 1-2 percent random sample of Czech households. The Microcensus 1996 was conducted by the Czech Statistical Office on a 1 percent random sample of households in March 1997.
